

DIVERSITY MASTER CLASS 2008

Equality and Diversity UK Ltd

This master-class will explore the challenges that diversity places upon policy makers, practitioners and the debates that take place in our communities. Through taking part, delegates will have a clear and concise understanding of how to successfully respond to these challenges and be helped to move away from treating this as a subject area of PC, stereotypes, myths and simple language to understanding that a far greater, complex approach needs to take place to help our communities work and play effectively together.

It aims to inform delegates of the key challenges that need to be understood and overcome in order to support learning communities, to develop an appreciation of equality and diversity and to be successfully prepared for life in a multicultural and multi-ethnic Britain.

Through the seminar, delegates will have the opportunity to expand their knowledge in three distinct areas.
